THE PATZ STORY

Patz Corporation, a family-owned business founded in 1948, currently has two generations active in the business. On January 1, 2004, Darrell Patz, the youngest son of founder Paul and Mamie Patz, succeeded Clifford Patz to become the company's third president.

Patz continues to thrive in an ever-changing market by listening to the needs of the diverse customer base we serve, from small dairies and large corporate farming operations to industrial businesses and contract manufacturing clients.

Company History

Company founder Paul Patz started farming very young and daily barn cleaning was his job, plus the feeding and milking of 40 head of cattle. He saw a need for a rugged, efficient piece of equipment that would end the laborious and time-consuming daily chore of cleaning barn gutters. His conception became a reality when he designed his first barn cleaner and installed it himself.

During 1946 and 1947, he worked the design to improve it until the barn cleaner performed to his satisfaction. In 1948, he sold his first barn cleaner and was in business. It soon became evident that the Patz Barn Cleaner would be a success, largely because of the unique, one-piece, heavy-duty link that Mr. Patz invented and patented. The link helped make the Patz Barn Cleaner the leader in the industry.

First Factory Building

Those first few hundred barn cleaners were built right on the farm. By 1950 the demand for Patz Barn Cleaners had increased to a point where a factory and office building were necessary. The original building measured 60 by 112 feet.

Additional facilities were built at regular intervals. Then in 1971, a fire destroyed almost the entire manufacturing facility. With the same sincere faith that carried Paul Patz through his first 25 years of business, the company started rebuilding a modern manufacturing facility.

The fire disaster turned into an advantage because the new manufacturing facility lowered production costs and increased the efficiency of the company. The Patz corporate headquarters now has more than five acres—250,000 square feet—under roof.
